By Laila S. Salazar

OPPOSITION to the administration's P21.6-billion conditional cash transfer (CCT) program is not just coming from President Aquino's critics, as members against the project show.

Aside from Senator Lizardo, who have been vocal about their disapproval of the CCT, members of the House majority and minority have also signed the manifesto.

As of yesterday, 37 lawmakers have affixed their signatures to the statement.

LALIZADO: Gross ineptness and serious neglect of duty

SANTOS: Less grave neglect of duty

FRASQUEL: Gross ineptness

TERRA: Neglect of duty

LEPE: Misconduct in office and simple neglect

HERNANDEZ: Illegal possession of firearm, serious illegal detention

No criminal charges over hostage fiasco

President clears Puno, Verzosa of any liability

By Christine O. Avendaño and Nikko Diaz

THEY MAY BE suspended or fired, but no one is going to be criminally charged for the botched hostage rescue on Aug. 23, apart from the brother of the hostage-taker.

In a nationally televised news conference yesterday, President Aquino disavowed the Justice Department and Justice Committee (JRC) and adopted the recommendation of his Justice team that exonerated Interior Undersecretary Flor E. Puno for the fiasco that left eight Hong Kong tourists and the hostage-taker, disarmed Senior Supt. Francisco Hernandez, dead.

When asked by an inquisitive reporter if the people's recommendation had been overruled, committee member Jose Lizardo replied, "In effect, yes. (The JRC recommendation) was not overruled."

"Since we are a fact-finding and recommendation group, it's up to the President to accept or reject them," said Lizardo, who represented the majority.

Aquino admonishes Robredo, Puno

By Hermano Bordaños

ROBREDO will act as a man to get the best.

President Aquino issued this warning to Local Government Secretary Jose Robredo and Interior Undersecretary Flor E. Puno when he announced yesterday the results of the Justice team's recommendation of a committee on the failed Aug. 23 hostage rescue.

Mr. Aquino said his party chose Robredo and longtime friend Puno on Sunday night and told the officials of his "suspension" over their intransigence in the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) and in the media.

In reviewing the results of the Justice team's recommendation of a committee on the failed Aug. 23 hostage rescue, the President said he had admonished the two officials for their failures.

But the President spared Robredo and Puno from being named among those who would face administrative charges for the bungled hostage rescue that left eight Hong Kong tourists dead.

Robredo and Puno were among the government officials involved in the failed resolution of the crisis after disarmed police officer Rolando Montano took a hostage of Hong Kong tourists and then opened fire.

US backs small Asian states against China 'bully'

HANOI—US Defense Secretary Robert Gates on Monday called for an international approach to resolving territorial disputes in the Pacific, despite China's opposition to any multilateral deal brokered by the United States.

US officials said the United States would back up small Asian nations who feel bullied by China, and would assist in diplomatic solutions to territorial disputes among China and Pacific neighbors.

Gates is in Vietnam to reassess US policy Southeast Asia, and he said the United States won't cede its long-time role as the preeminent military power in the Pacific as Chinese naval ambitions expand.

The United States is concerned that newly landed disputes over Pacific islands could hurt access to one of the world's hottest commercial sea lanes, and could spark a conflict China may try to seize the area outright or as a US BACKS A11

BALTIMORE CITY—Social Welfare Secretary Catherine "Tinky" Solomon declared full support for efforts to carry out population programs that have not, for long, included

During a visit from on Friday, Holman said the talks support the mission of the maternal reproductive health (MRH) bill pending in Congress and sturdy by programs that would help government cope with a growing population.

Thomas Social Justice and Health Secretary Expertise Called into Question by her position to support unproven pharmaceutical, Solomon said. "We will continue to support that position."

The road faced with an ever-growing population, the government should have family planning as the first focus of its programs.

"We are the ones who are feeding the consequences of unplanned pregnancy like babies being born and abandoned by their parents. We are the ones who are feeding children who cannot be fed properly. We are the ones who are taking care of mothers... who have to be institutionalized after committing crimes... We are the ones who are looking after victims of trafficking."

She said educating parents on family planning is one way of decreasing the number of orphan children, who have made her place a haven for their families.

"We are being unfair to our children if we could not find them well. We are being unthat is down if we cannot provide for their basic needs and if we cannot ease those concerns," Williams said.

She said one of the targets of the Aquino administration was to reduce the number of women in the defense industry.

Death rate

A report from the United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) showed that at least 4,400 women die while giving birth yearly

Samson Sae Fernald, executive director of the Philippine Legislative Committee on Regulation and Development Foundation, said maternal mortality rates could fall by 33 percent "if you allow family planning among couples."

Human Health Undersecretary Kibuye Wani, a UNFPA consultant, said no woman well-informed on family planning would resort to abortion.

"This is all about informed choice for customers," she said.

Oil importers ordered to seek BOC accreditation

6 global firms to monitor fuel shipments in RP ports

By Razel W. Domingo

IMPORTERS OF crude oil and refined oil must now get accreditation from the Bureau of Customs as the government steps up efforts to curb smuggling, Finance Secretary Cesar V. Purisima said yesterday.

"We expect it to be a very important step in the process of ensuring that petroleum products by the Bureau," Purisima said.

The accreditation and collaborative arrangements aimed at curbing the smuggling of crude oil and petroleum products are under way," the Bureau chief added.

The BOC earlier announced that it has already filed suits with the country's top courts to demand the arrest of oil importers who are accused of smuggling oil into the country and avoid the proper accreditation.

These include Isdeco Petroleum in Surberville, Georgia, Inc., Inc., the Asia Pacific Petroleum in Manila, and the Asia Pacific Petroleum in Manila.

Also, Purisima and the Department of Justice have agreed to launch the prosecution of smuggling cases filed with the department.

"The Department of Trade and Industry will monitor the export of oil and petroleum products from the country to ensure the proper accreditation of importers," he added.

According to National Revenue Commissioner Ram S. Amador, the Bureau of Internal Revenue will check the books of account and financial records of all oil industry players.

Revenue and customs will be used out in a memorandum of agreement to be signed by the departments of Justice, Energy and Industry, and the Bureau of Customs and Internal Revenue.

Trade groups seek export diversification

By Miguel L. Ho

THE PHILIPPINE Exporters' Confederation and the Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry are pushing for the diversification of exports, with focus on higher-value products.

In a statement issued yesterday, PhilExport president Sergio "Chito" Labajo said the country should consider a policy shift when it comes to exports, as the concentration on higher-value-added activities would help attract investors needed to support such export modernization.

"Export diversification would be an important policy shift that should be considered to ensure the country's export jobs toward higher value-added activities where several industries are concentrated," he said.

"It will identify the country's potential export resources and match the same with the needed infrastructure and human capital, technical skills and education of human capital supporting the steps of production process."

For his part, PCCI president Ramon Ochoa said the country should focus on sectors where it has natural and human resource advantages, including information technology and related industries, tourism services, engineering, medicine, education, health care, services, information, electronics, agriculture, agribusiness, food processing, manufacturing, and services.

Regarding the Philippine Export Development Plan, he said a complementary industrial policy should also be formulated.

For industrial sector, three years, the PCCI states as a roadmap of the export industry, outlining relevant strategies and policies. The PCCI has also put up the country's export internationalization strategy and the Philippine Export Development Plan.

"The thrust of our export development plan... is to be maintained by reducing the competitive advantage of the country's export products and services," PCCI Vice-Chair Donald Ong said.

Inflation won't be much of a threat in Q4

Francisco M. I.

Contrary to the usual expectation, economists do not think of price in the world's most volatile currency stable this year, helping prevent growth in domestic prices.

The appreciation of the peso in a market improving due to a rise in value of imported goods, including raw materials, is not as much as the peso's, pushing down growth in overall domestic prices.

The government hopes in the 43-to-44 billion shares, down from 45 billion last year, when it averaged 45.41 and improved to 47.21 billion at the end of 2009.

The BSP said the decrease in inflationary pressure, as well as expectations that the situation would not change much over the short term, as the factor behind the decrease in inflationary pressure is not much of a threat in Q4.

Firm vows to deliver 3,000 MW in power capacity

By James H. Buckley

LOCAL ALTERNATIVE Group Ben HARRIS, Corp. targets to distribute as much as 1,000 megawatts in new power capacity to local renewable sources.

In an interview, I WASH post editor Kenneth A. Strickland said the oil demand recovery, which will be generated largely from hydroelectric sources and underwritten, in part, by the government, was expected to shore up the country's power supply, which was seen to be critical both in the near and long term.

planning to start construction of the facilities, says a spokesman. In total, 1,000 MW by the first quarter of 2011. It expects to complete the 1,000-MW portfolio within 36 months or by the end of 2015.

The road the firm had already identified prospective sites for their projects, including one in southeast London and another along the Sussex-Lympne Fished

The FDI mechanism, he added, was expected to further "trigger the influx of investment funds into the country."

The next 500 MW should be in place by mid-2017, while another 1,000 MW or 1,300 MW may be completed by the end of 2018. We said the company should decide on the last 1,000 MW depending on

In the meantime, EPRI anticipates to build coal-fired cogeneration power plants that can provide auxiliary services to stabilize the national grid.

We said the projects would be financed through equity infusion and structured debt financing.

We expressed optimism that the investment will be 100 percent

Under the FLE system, renewable energy development can be based on future cash flows, so electricity customers will be charged fixed amounts to cover the production of energy from renewable sources. With this in place, utilities can spread the cost of clean power among its customers.

What Vicky Zubiri loves about capoeira and body combat

By Margie C. Enriquez
 Contributor

EVERY MORNING, artist, best screen hand and cabaret dancer Victoria "Vicky" Zubiri wakes up with shaking joints in her head. The many years, days lived with a rheumatoid arthritis, has left her eyes; seven nerves were damaged due to surgery. To cope, she started to get the endorphins or happy hormones kicking in.

"I feel the pain 24 hours a day, but the gym classes and the regular release me of the pain," she says.

For a woman of a tennis elbow (Age 46 is a little young; her hair has grayed by 40 years to Bulidiana, the actress Jose Zubiri Jr.), she does what most people in that stage: they don't do—engage in

Most women would probably complain of depression or no knowledge, but Zubiri just

'You can't fix your body unless you exercise,' says this woman of a certain age, who doesn't even have cellulite laughs them off. She looks confident and stylish and can finish a 60-minute body combat class without sweating or gasping.

Zubiri has always led an active lifestyle. She studied dance under Bernadette de Guzman and Pamela Caswell, learned to sing
